I hardly think Microsoft's 1B offer to education is enough punishment for holding the entire computer industry hostage. Microsoft is such a big company that even the DOJ is powerless in getting them to pay.

1 Billion to education is a drop in the bucket and from the looks of things it appears Microsoft is wiggling out of this punishment by elbowing their way into the education market...a market they did not monopolize.

The DOJ needs to hit Microsoft where it hurts in order to prevent this kind of monopoly in the future.

Respectfully,
Don Montalvo, NYC
